Author spotlight

This month's author: Daisy May Johnson

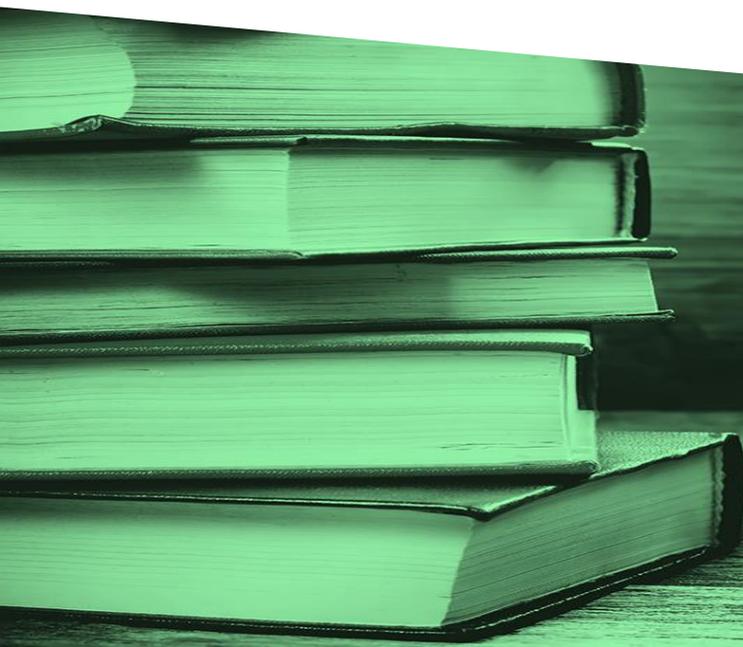

This month, we are shining the spotlight on the fabulous Daisy May Johnson.

Johnson has been writing for a few years and specialises in children's literature.

Her most recent novels, How To Be Brave and How To Be True are available to buy in local bookshops or online.

If you're looking for some uplifting adventures to get stuck into next, this could be perfect for you!

DAISY MAY JOHNSON

Hello readers!

My name is Daisy May Johnson and I am writing to you to say hello. Hello!! Hang on. Let me put that bit in capitals so you can all hear it. HELLOOOOOO!! :-)) I hope you heard it!

I'm an author and I write books for readers like you. My first was called How To Be Brave and my second is called How To Be True. If you like books about best friends and cakes and adventures and code-cracking and adventures and lots (and lots) (and lots and lots) of puns, then you might like my books. I hope you do! (They are best read with biscuits, so make sure you do have some handy).

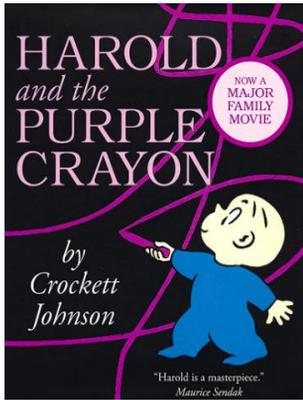

My books are all set at a boarding school called The School Of The Good Sisters. The Good Sisters are not the sort of sisters who are related to each other. They are the sort of sisters who are Nuns and they teach Very Important Things like how to order a cake in five different languages (including Klingon), and how to abseil down the side of a building in case of an emergency.

I am going to end this letter with two Top Tips for you. The first is this: never put jam inside a chocolate cake (V IMPORTANT), and the second is this: always write your stories about the things you want to write about. If you're interested in them, then we will be as well. Happy writing!

Follow the adventures of Harold as he creates magical fantasies with his purple crayon.

Originally written in 1955, Harold and the Purple Crayon became wildly popular with younger audiences and is loved by generations today.

Starring the likes of Zooey Deschanel, Zachary Levi and Lil Rel Howery, this would be perfect if you're looking to spend an afternoon at the cinema with the kids.

It has been shown that reading books and engaging in mentally challenging activities, like playing puzzle games, helps slow down the cognitive decline in old age. That results in lower chances of Alzheimer's disease or other age-related neurodegenerative diseases for people who read regularly. A study from the University of California shows that people with a high literacy level are 4 to 5 times less likely to suffer mental declines with old age.

A study from Yale University concluded, after studying over 3500 people over the age of 50, that participants who read at least 30 minutes per day, lived on average 23 months longer than non-readers. 30 minutes of reading per day for living almost 2 years longer? That sounds like a great deal.

By surveying more than 4,000 adults, the University of Liverpool that readers are happier, less stressed, cope better with challenges, and have more close friends than non-readers.

Reading can help alleviate depression. Especially reading fiction, since it can help people temporarily escape their own world and immerse themselves in the adventures of the characters they read about. Not only that, but studies have also shown that reading can have a positive effect on anxiety symptoms too.

There are three main levels to the award: Bronze, Silver and Gold. Each level has a series of reading tasks to complete with badges and certificates awarded along the way.

Each task must be signed off by a teacher or adult. Once a level has been completed, you can start the next level.

What's new?

Non-fiction:

Pageboy by Elliot Page

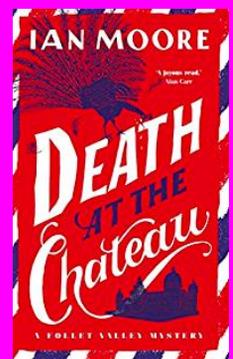

As Elliot Page navigated criticism and abuse from some of the most powerful people in Hollywood, a past that snapped at his heels, and a society dead set on forcing him into a binary, he often stayed silent, unsure of what to do, until enough was enough. Full of behind-the-scenes details and intimate interrogations on sex, love, trauma, and Hollywood, Pageboy is the story of a life pushed to the brink.

Fiction

Death at the Chateau by Ian Moore

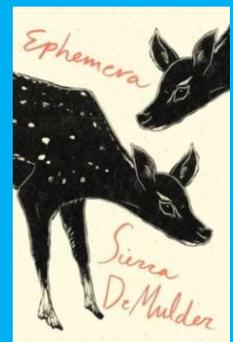

Richard Ainsworth's French B&B has been taken over by a production company shooting a historical film at the Chateau de Valencay. But everything grinds to a halt with the sudden passing of an actor under suspicious circumstances.

Poetry

Ephemera by Sierra DeMulder

In Sierra DeMulder's melancholic yet beautifully hopeful poetry collection, Ephemera, she writes with the wisdom of someone who has learned to love and lose. Each poem reads delicately and elegantly, just fleeting memories on the page. Taking experience from her own life, this paints a beautiful picture on love, loss and everything in between.

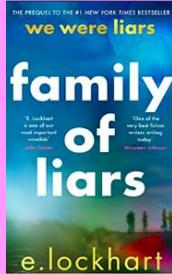

Pupil Recommendations

Family of Liars by E. Lockhart

But Isabel still craves normality, and she won't find it inside the guild. She moves in with a civilian flatmate, Laura, and begins living a double life, one where she gets to pretend, she's free.

Roar by Beth Mead

Staff Recommendations

The Wild Card by Judy Murray

A scintillating debut thriller from Judy Murray, The Wild Card finds a faded tennis star on an unexpected winning streak as a dramatic secret from her past comes to light.

The Seven Moons of Maali Amieda by Shehan Karunatilaka

Mordantly funny and utterly unique, Karunatilaka's maverick novel dissects the painful truths of a brutal and dark chapter in Sri Lanka's recent history through the titular protagonist's afterlife quest to find out who murdered him.

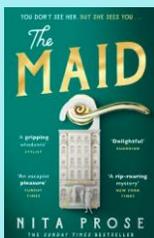

Before The Coffee Gets Cold by Toshikazu Kawaguchi

In a small back alley in Tokyo, there is a cafe which has been serving carefully brewed coffee for more than one hundred years. But this coffee shop offers its customers a unique experience: the chance to travel back in time.

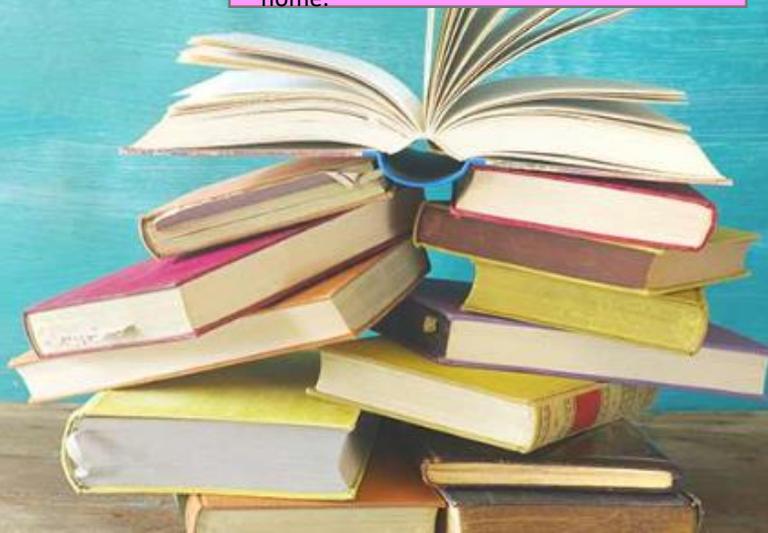

The Maid by Nita Prose

Molly the Maid is all alone in the world. A nobody. She's used to being invisible in her job at the Regency Grand Hotel, plumping pillows and wiping away the grime, dust and secrets of the guests who pass through. She's just a maid - why should anyone take notice?

Memphis by Tara M. Stringfellow

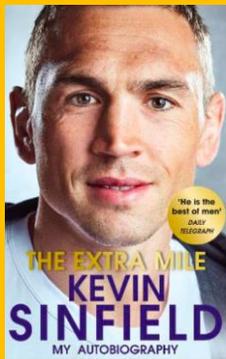

Memphis is a celebration of the enduring strength of female bonds, of what we pass down, from mother to daughter. Epic in scope yet intimate in detail, it is a vivid portrait of three generations of a Southern black family, as well as an ode to the city they call home.

House recommendation: Cuthbert

Mr O'Boyle (House Captain) The Extra Mile By Kevin Sinfield

The inspirational, heart-rending memoir of a true Rugby League legend, The Extra Mile documents not just Sinfield's sporting achievements throughout an illustrious career but also the heroism he has displayed in raising money for the Motor Neurone Disease that has afflicted his best friend and fellow rugby star Rob Burrow.

House Prefect The Hunger Games- Catching Fire by Suzanne Collins

After winning the brutal Hunger Games, Katniss and Peeta return to their district, hoping for a peaceful future. But their victory has caused rebellion to break out ... and the Capitol has decided that someone must pay.

House Pupil A Good Girl's Guide to Murder by Holly Jackson

The case is closed. Five years ago, schoolgirl Andie Bell was murdered by Sal Singh. The police know he did it. Everyone in town knows he did it. But having grown up in the same small town that was consumed by the crime, Pippa Fitz-Amobi isn't so sure. When she chooses the case as the topic for her final project, she starts to uncover secrets that someone in town desperately wants to stay hidden.

What are they reading?

MEREDITH GREY

This Is Going to Hurt by Adam Kay

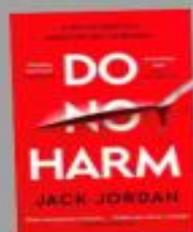

As she starts her new life in Boston, this would be the perfect read for Meredith if she's exploring medicine across the pond. Hilarious and painfully honest, this is a no-holds barred account of one junior doctor's time on the frontline of the NHS.

CRISTINA YANG

Do No Harm by Jack Jordan

We all know that Dr. Yang loves a gritty medical drama. Do No Harm is a compulsive, edge-of-the-seat thriller about a surgeon forced to murder a patient to save her son from a ruthless kidnapper. A perfect way for her to wind down from the stresses of the day.

IZZIE STEVENS

At the Table by Claire Powell

Whilst advancing through the world of medicine to be one of Kansas' top surgical oncologists, Izzie also had to take time to deal with relationships within her family. Powell's newest novel blends troublesome family relationships with dinners and cooking (another one of Izzie's passions). Set across 12 months of increasingly combustible meals and drinks gatherings, Powell's witty and relatable debut novel picks apart the complexities of family dynamics with scalpel sharp aplomb.

DEREK SHEPHERD

The Hunting Party by Lucy Foley

After a long day of being Seattle's top neurosurgeon, Dr. Shepherd would have loved nothing more than settling down in his trailer with a juicy murder mystery. Bringing all the appeal of an Agatha Christie-style house-party whodunit to a thoroughly modern thriller, Lucy Foley's impressive thriller casts her readers to the lonely outreaches of the Scottish wilderness.

APRIL KEPNER

Darling by India Knight

After separating from Matthew and reconciling with Jackson Avery, it appears that Dr. Kepner has finally found her happy ending. After years of working through the trials and tribulations of medicine, she quickly became one of the most respected surgeons at Seattle Grace and even took her expertise to international levels. More often than not, it was her own independence that led to her successes. With that in mind, she might also be able to relate nicely to protagonist, Linda Radlett as she learns the ways of the world on her own.

Word of the Month

Enthral

(Origin: Middle English)

Enthral means “to hold the attention of someone by being very exciting, interesting, or beautiful,” or in other words, “to charm.” It is often used in its past participle form, as in “I was enthralled by the beauty of the landscape.”

The history of enthral appeals far less than the word as we use it today might suggest. In Middle English, enthralled meant “to deprive of privileges; to put in bondage.” Thrall then, as now, referred to bondage or slavery. An early figurative use of enthral appeared in Shakespeare’s 'A Midsummer Night's Dream': “So is mine eye enthralled to thy shape.” But we rarely use even this sense of mental or moral control anymore.

More often, the word simply suggests a state of being generally captivated or delighted by something.

Reading for Pleasure

Reading is a huge part of our academy. Throughout our school, we have implemented numerous reading strategies that will give pupils access to a wide range of literature both inside and outside the classroom.

Our Reading for Pleasure lessons have been met with fantastic positivity and enthusiasm from our KS3 pupils. Texts have been specifically chosen that link not only to our curriculum, but to our Christian values as well. This year, pupils will enjoy a range of texts such as:

Year 7

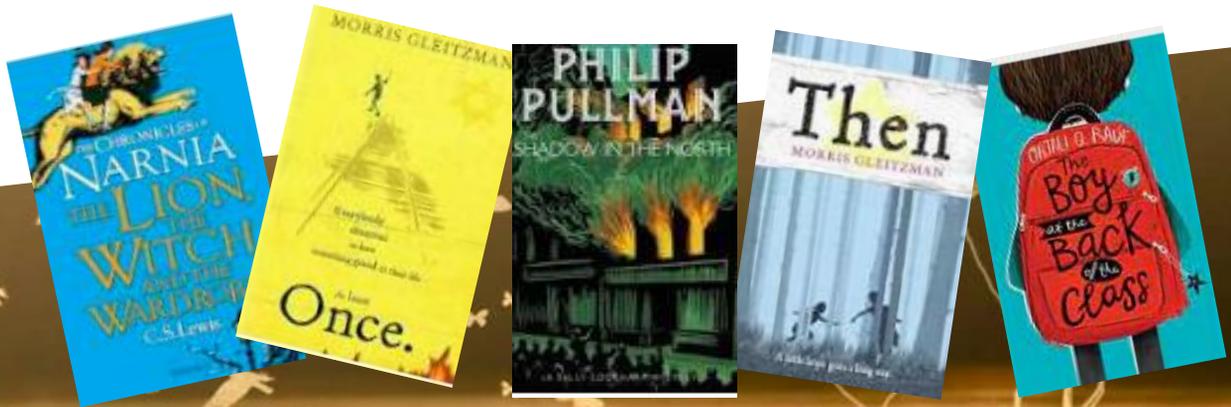

The Lion, The Witch and The Wardrobe by C.S. Lewis
Once by Morris Gleitzman

Year 8

The Shadow in the North by Philip Pullman
Then by Morris Gleitzman

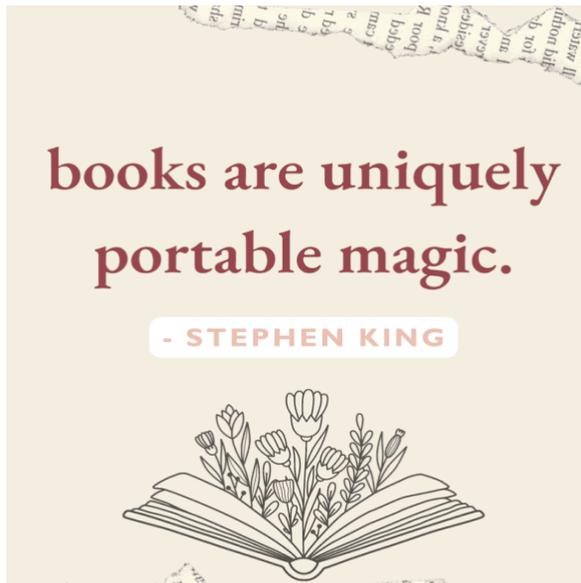

Year 9

The Boy at the Back of the Class by Onjali Q. Raúf
